LITTLE KNOWN FINDING AID

Did you know there is an index to the obituaries that were printed in the Oklahoma City newspaper, The Daily Oklahoman?

The Daily Oklahoman Index is located in the microforms department of the Bizzell Library at the University of Oklahoma in Norman. There you will find twenty-five bound typescript volumes covering the years 1947-1971. While the index covers a multitude of subjects, perhaps the most useful to genealogists are the entries under the subject heading NECROLOGY.

At first glance the dates may seem too recent. However, when you consider the volume for 1947 includes an index to obituaries for persons who died more than a generation ago, you should realize that many of those entries will lead you to genealogical data on people who were born in the middle 1800s. The obituaries are not limited to persons in Oklahoma City. The Daily Oklahoman also published death notices and obituaries for people outside the metropolitan area, including Oklahomans who died in other states.

Information given in the index includes the deceased's name, date the obituary was published, page number and column. Some page numbers are preceded by letters to indicate the section of the newspaper. You must remember to check other editions of the same issue if you do not locate the reference in the first issue on the microfilm reel. Complete runs of the Daily Oklahoman are available in microform at many state depositories including the Newspaper Archives Division, Oklahoma Historical Society in Oklahoma City and the Bizzell Library.

DENVER CEMETERY

The Denver Cemetery was established in 1893 as a community burial ground, located one half mile south of the original town site of Denver, Oklahoma Territory. Present location is 701 South East 108th Street or 1 1/2 miles north of state highway number 9 on southeast 108th Street.

Many of the old time residents and infants are buried here without a monument. The Denver Cemetery Corporation is now in the process of trying to locate and mark these graves. If you know of any unmarked graves please contact Albert Smith 321-3736

This list consists names from Meyer & Meyer Funeral home records as well as markers, and personal knowledge of these persons buried here.
